Yet it somehow suggests the remark of Polonius. when listening to the speech of the player-king in "Hamlet," "this is too tong." Aside from the fault of prolixity, howbeit, it has no defect. The atmosphere is omantic; the sentiment is pure and gentle; the characters are variously interesting, and are graphic in effect. maniness that is its basis, and with winning sweet-ness of spirit. The audience was small on Monday, the night of the first production of "The King of the Commons," and somewhat cold and sluggish. Yet Mr. Wallack's acting, especially in the scene with Seyton. in act fourth, at length aroused the deepest enthusiasm. At the end of that act Mr. Wallack was called before the curtain, and rewarded with a hearty outburst of cordial applause. Mr. Gilbert played Sir Adam Weir with dignity and taste. Mr. Mark Smith Interpreted, with admirable skill, the character of the senine chatterer, Laird Small as also did Mr. Young that of Mungo, while Mr. Ringgold, appearing as Malcolm Young, won much applause for a careful, graceful, and affecting performance. ## OLYMPIC THEATER.

The production of "Who Killed Cock Robin" and of "Black-Eved Susan," which was announced for Monday evening, at this theater, was deferred in consequence of the sudden illness of Mr. E. L. Davenport. That gentleman, however, has happily recovered, and the play mentioned will be acted to-night. the play mentioned will be acted to-night. "Who Killed Cock Robin" is said to be a two-not farce of a very lively description. With "Black-Eyed Susan" the public is well acquainted, as also with Mr. Davenport's manly and touching personation of William. New scenery, for that latter piece, has been painted by Mr. Hayes. The burlesque of "Cinderella," shortly to be produced at this theater, is the work of Mr. Byron of London, and is entirely distinct from the extravagauza of "Cinderella," acted at this theater in previous seasons. Mr. Rowe will appear in it, and the part of Cinderella will be performed by Mrs. Wood herself. Cinderella will be performed by Mrs. Wood herself. "Used Up" will be the companion piece. Last evening the entertainment offered at the Olympic comprise 'A Quiet Family," "Somebody Else," and "Jenny Lind," in the latter of which pieces Mrs. Wood gave. with mirthful effect her skillful imitations of well-known opera singers.

BROADWAY THEATER.

"The Live Indian" has intensified that spirit of mirth which, for weeks past, Uncle Solon Shingle has kept affame at this theater. It is, as we said the other day, an extremely amusing farce. The main idea is this: A youth loves the daughter of a tobacconist, but is checked in his wooing by that flinty-hearted and yet she preferred to exhibit her dashing skill out.

Mr. Bierstadt's "Storm in the Both? Mountains."

That very deserving charity-the Nursery Rocky Mountains," which is now on exhibition at Miner & Somerville's gallery, No. 845 Broadway, for the benefit of this benevolent enterprise. We say the Society is fortunate, because any picture that Mr. Bierstadt may paint is sure, in the present state of the public mind, to attract a great many people to see it; and, as the Child's Hospital is in need of help, the more people that can be induced to pay their money into the appear as Bianca in "Fazio," and as Pauline in "The Lady of Lyons."

Bryant's Minstrels. All are prospering. The new entertainment at the Circus must be reserved for especial notice. It is one of the best of the sort ever offered here, and deserves well of both press and public.

Mr. William Young's drama, "The Regent's Daughter," never yet acted, is shortly to be produced at the Park Theater in Brooklyn, under the supervision of Mr. F. B. Conway. It is said to be a play of great interest, and to possess the charms of true feeling tender sentiment, romance, and purity of style. The success of such a drama will be recorded with very great pleasure.

Attempted Suicide.—A man named George Colins, who resides in Rochester, N. Y., attempted suicide in the barber-shop No. 229 Bleecker-st., by cutting his throat with a razor. Officer Barbalet of the Twenty-eighth Precinct Police was notified, and the wounded man was conveyed to Bellevue Hospital, where it was discovered that his wounds were serious, but thought would not prove fatal.
